DANIELLE SYDNOR, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, INCLUSIVE PROSPERITY PARTNERSHIP

"I've navigated financial insecurity and a non-traditional career path so I don't arrive at this work from a place of theory. I know my lived experience is not everyone's experience, but it gives me a lens through which I see the problem and possible solutions."

"I believe it's powerful when we design with community, not for community. The Inclusive Prosperity Partnership is committed to doing just that by bringing the community into the design process."

"As the mother of two, now adult sons, I know firsthand the challenges of trying to manage it all. Now helping this generation launch has deepened my commitment to this work."

"All people must have access to the resources required to build liberated self-sufficiency. That belief has shaped my work for more than twenty years."

"St. Louis has committed leaders and strong plans. My job is to help us act on them together."

JASON PURNELL, CHAIR, IPP STEERING COMMITTEE, AND PRESIDENT & CEO, JAMES S. MCDONNELL FOUNDATION

"She has supported the economic advancement of individuals and communities, and she knows how to launch new initiatives and build the coalitions that make them work."
